

Matt Markoff

Matt Markoff was recently awarded a master's degree by the Evans School of Public Affairs at the University of Washington, where he studied the impacts of climate change on Pacific Northwest hydropower. Prior to graduate school, Matt worked on renewable energy and climate change policy at the World Resources Institute. Matt received B.A. degrees in computer science and cognitive science from UC Berkeley in 1997. Matt is currently with Ross & Associates, an environmental consulting firm based in Seattle.